APPLICATIONS FOR PATHWAYS TO LAW ARE NOW OPEN!

Pathways to Law is a Sutton Trust programme which aims to level the playing field and boost social mobility in the legal field by giving students the knowledge, experience, skills and confidence they need to make decisions about and steps towards their future in law. The programme runs from November of year 12 to spring of year 13, with ongoing support to aid their transition at the end of sixth form. Students can expect opportunities such as university visits, a summer residential, skills workshops, taster lectures, webinars, as well as carrying out legal work experience with leading firms and chambers, with many opportunities to network with trainees, lawyers, barristers, judges and more, with the programme culminating with a graduation ceremony at the University of Leeds. Successful completion of the programme also makes students eligible to be considered for a contextual offer at one of our partner universities – including Leeds, Cardiff, Exeter, and LSE – which is often around two grades lower than the typical entry requirements.
